LONDON ADMITS THAT NOTHING BUT A MIRACLE CAN SAVE BELEAGUERED COUNTRY.

BULGARS DRIVEN OUT?

French Troops Reported to Have Come Valiantly to Aid of Serbians Pushing Back King Ferdinand's Forces.

London, Oct. 27.—The desperate plight of the Serbians, which has been described ever since the beginning of the Austro-German and Bulgarian invasions as "an affair of national life or death," is no longer a rhetorical phrase but the literal truth. London's optimism regarding the outcome of the Balkan conflict, which has been colored by reports of the determined resistance of the Serbians, and the difficulties which the invaders are meeting, has now yielded to the conviction that it will take something in the nature of a miracle to divert a disaster for Serbia.

Landsdowne's Exposure.
Lord Landsdowne's exposition of the Macedonian campaign in the house of lords yesterday, is regarded as indication that the assistance the allies have been able to offer Serbia is not sufficient to meet her needs. The speech of the Serbian premier to England, "to do everything you can to insure your troops reaching us as soon as possible," intimates a resistance of the Serbians is nearing its last stage.

Stubborn Resistance.
All dispatches continue to describe the intensely stubborn resistance of the Serbians. According to accounts reaching here concerning the capture of Uskup, the Serbians defended every foot of ground furiously and no quarter was given on either side. Although the Bulgarian forces are said to have outnumbered the Serbians ten to one, they made only five thousand prisoners. All the other fought to their death.

Von Hindenburg's Drive.
Field Marshal von Hindenburg's tremendous offensive against Drinsk continues. The progress has not advanced sufficiently to make the Russian defenses. South of the Pripiet, the Austrians are struggling to regain the initiative. The situation on other fronts shows no material change.

Bulgars Driven Out.

German and Austrian Governments Send to America to Secure Vaudeville Acts.
New York, Oct. 27.—The German and Austrian governments are encouraging the theatres and music halls of those countries to give performances to amuse men wounded in the war, according to letters from Germany received by New York theatrical agent, who says he was asked to book high class musical acts, comedians, vaudeville acts, and other theatrical sketches and novelties and send them to Germany. Scenes in the hospital when volunteer vaudeville players go to sing and dance to amuse the sufferers, are described as pathetic.

It takes the soldiers' minds off their suffering for the moment and aids in their recovery," the writer said.

U. S. LEGISLATION TO AID INDUSTRIES AFTER WAR CLOSES

Secretary Redfield and President Wilson Confer Today on Means to Protect Manufacturers.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Administration plans for legislation to protect American manufacturers from foreign competition after the European war were discussed with President Wilson today by Secretary Redfield and Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. They submitted tentative proposals for legislation to make "unfair competition" punishable under anti-trust laws.

Numerous suggestions of tariff legislation with an added duty on goods to be sold at less than the cost of production has been generally rejected. Administration officials have been opposed to "anti dumping" laws which contemplate tariff changes.

Secretary Redfield has made it clear that he will urge legislation making "dumping" unfair competition under the anti-trust laws.

Passenger Arriving From England Tells How Prank in Play Kept People From Knowing of Raid.

New York, Oct. 27.—A possible panic in a London theatre during the last Zeppelin raid was averted through the audience mistaking a bit of bomb dropped nearby for a bit of stage realism, according to Colin A. Cockburn of Toronto, who arrived here on the steamer Tactania from Liverpool. He said he was in a theatre on the night of October 18. A Zeppelin bomb exploded close to the place, he said, but an automobile on the stage had just been cranked and the audience thought it was a cleverly arranged bit of the motor. CHEAP JEWELRY TAKEN Four Sacks Resembling Money Bags All That Were Taken Railroad Office Reports—Passengers Unharmed.

Three other safes defied their attempts to rob them, and the men made no effort to molest mails or passengers. Guard was then begun on the safes. Three safes appeared to be impenetrable and were abandoned. After five charges of nitroglycerine were exploded the fourth safe in the train was opened and its contents looted. During all this time the robbers fired shots were fired by the men, but except for a brakeman, who was wounded in the finger when he tried to escape, no one was hurt. The loot from the wrecked safe had been packed away by the robbers, and the train crew, wished them "Good night," and disappeared into the darkness.

"The Shoe Tax"

Father's income knows what it is and to mother it is also a very real thing.

It means the high cost of keeping a growing boy or girl properly shod.

When father and mother figure out all the new shoes they have to buy they are apt to conclude shoes are made out of paper rather than leather.

Care in purchasing will cut down this tax, care in choosing the right shoes and care in buying at the most favorable time.

And the first step in the right direction is a study of the advertising in The Gazette that gives the helpful information.

TWO MORE ELEVENS GO OUT SATURDAY

Conference Race Dwindles Down to Four Teams, Two of Which Will Be Eliminated Saturday.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The Big Nine dwindled down to the Big Four, and will dwindle down to the Big Two after the conference battles of last Saturday, but four teams remained in the running for the title, Wisconsin, Chicago, Minnesota and the present champion Illinois team. Two of these teams will be eliminated next Saturday, as the Badgers are scheduled to invade Chicago, while Minnesota travels to Urbana to clash with the title holders.

The showing of the Badgers against Ohio State has caused the other contenders to fear Wisconsin. Juneau appears to have rounded out a strong eleven, and while the boys clash with the Maroons at Chicago next Saturday the students and alumni will be there in droves to cheer them on to victory.

From the showing of the teams so far the Badgers have a slight edge on the Windy City eleven, while State held Stagg's men to a tie, the Badgers triumphed over the men 21 to 0. The Badgers also made a better showing against Purdue than Chicago did.

Minnesota is going to give Illinois a stiff battle, despite the fact that the Gophers have lost to Ohio State. The Gophers eliminated Iowa on Saturday, and this week Coach Williams will have his men working hard for the battle at Urbana. These two games will keep the fans in the west pretty hot for Saturday.

As though the battle for the title will be between Illinois and Wisconsin.

Because of their poor work throughout the last season and particularly in the season series with the Browns, several of the Cardinals are said to be slated for disposition before the 1916 campaign is inaugurated.

DUNDEE HAS SHADE ON WILLIE RITCHIE

Jumping Jack from New York Out-points American Champ—Ted Lewis Wins Over Mandot.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, Oct. 27.—Johnny Dundee of New York, outpointed Willie Ritchie of San Francisco, American champion, in their ten round bout at Madison Square Garden here last night.

Dundee earned the honors in five rounds and the champion had the better of three, two being even. Ritchie had an advantage of almost nine pounds, weighing 141½ to Dundee's 132½.

The contest was hard fought after the first two rounds, when Ritchie was unable to find his man and was forced to clinch frequently. Dundee's peculiar jumping style puzzled the westerner.

Ritchie took the aggressive in the third round and carried it by a shade, although Dundee showed well at the finishing. The referee cautioned Ritchie for holding in the fourth, which was even. Dundee took the next three rounds, scored with a left jab. His clever footwork kept Ritchie guessing, many of his blows going wild. Ritchie sent in several hard rights to the head and body in the eighth, weakening Dundee and in the ninth kept the local boy on the defensive. Both administered severe punishment in the final round.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 27.—Ted Lewis, the English lightweight, won by a wide margin over Joe Mandot of New Orleans in a twelve round bout Tuesday night. Mandot fought gamely, but was knocked down in the fourth and nine in the first and twelfth rounds.

Virginia is something more than "the mother of presidents." The showing made by Virginia university this season is one of the best ever made by one of the numerically smaller universities. With less than 1,000 students to draw on, Virginia against Yale and Harvard, rolled up ten points against the two, and contributing the nine and Yale the rest of it on the shorter side. For a university eleven selected from this comparatively small school, coached by a graduate student of its own, to prevent Yale and Harvard from crossing its goal line is an achievement worthy of special mention—which this doesn't claim to be.

It is only a question of a short time when the New York American league club will give official notice of its site for its own ball park. The park it is understood will be built in the borough of Queens. Architects already are drawing plans for the new plant, which is to have a seating capacity as large as, if not larger than, Braves' Field in Boston. The Yankee management has agreed on the Polo Grounds for next season, but it will make every effort to open its season on its own grounds, and work on the park will be pushed with this in view.

William Pierce, a right-handed pitcher, was signed by the Yankees last night. Pierce hails from the Vernon club of the Pacific coast league, where he is said to have made a splendid record. He is but nineteen years old, and was drafted by "Bill" Donovan last month. "Bill" Lange and other capable judges of ball players recommended him, and he was the only coast player the Yankees went after, and naturally, they figure themselves pretty lucky to have gotten him in the draft.

Young Brown, the New York lightweight, who has fought all the boys of note in that division, is again going to make an invasion of the west. His manager, Mandot Reiser, has booked Brown for a half dozen encounters, starting in Superior, Wis., where he will meet Young Saylor on November 2. From there he goes to Minneapolis, where the promoters are now trying to secure an opponent for the Reiser protégé. It is most likely that it will be Johnny Tillman or Ole Rivers. Owing to the manner in which Brown showed up against Phil Brooks and Frankie Whitney at Minneapolis, he has endeared himself in the hearts of the western fight fans, and whenever the East Sider is billed to box in the clubs out west, they are sure of banner crowds.

Because of their poor work throughout the last season and particularly in the season series with the Browns, several of the Cardinals are said to be slated for disposition before the 1916 campaign is inaugurated.

Long and Betz are the only ones that Manager Huggins looks upon with satisfaction. Miller and Bescher, each of whom was a high salaried man, failed to take any interest in the game, while Doak and Saltee apparently did not care who won.

and Fred Merkle once. These are the record long distance hits in Pittsburgh, however. Ham Hyatt put the ball over the right field fence for the greatest swat in the history of the Smoky City.

An unofficial compilation of pitching records based on effectiveness shows that Grover Cleveland leads in low percentage of runs, with 2.06 to the nine-inning game scored off him. If these figures are correct, Alexander is considerably behind the mark set by Bill Doak in this respect last year. Toney of Cincinnati ranks next to Alexander, and Marquard ranks next to the bottom, only his teammate Appleton being below him. Marquard allowed an average of five runs to the game.

BOASTS OF KINSHIP TO BRITISH ROYALTY

Evansville Mail Carrier Proud of Being Closely Related to Royal Blood of Europe.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Evansville, Oct. 27.—America is a democracy whose population is composed of intermingling races, it is interesting but not surprising to note that some of our least pretentious citizens could trace their ancestry to the royal families of various countries. The fact that "near royalty" makes no boast of relation, but shows but little interest and marked reticence when questioned on the matter, shows the great divergence in the American point of view from the European, and to what extent the spirit of democracy becomes instilled after a few generations have developed, apart from the land of their origin.

The Benson family of this city is of royal extraction, being related to the ruling houses of both England and Belgium. What makes the family not be considered close in America, it is a fact that many third or fourth cousins here, are quite intimate, and it is a further fact that in England, where the social and political standing depends largely upon ancestry, the matter of lineage is one of utmost importance and it is traced much farther back than in the case here.

Charles Benson is a third cousin of King George of England. His grandmother, Maria Louisa Victoria, being own sister, Queen Victoria and his mother being own cousins.

Queen Victoria and Mr. Benson's mother were first cousins, and throughout her life, Queen Victoria, and Mrs. Benson regularly corresponded, the letters having been read by the latter after her death and the latter often receiving gifts and remittances from her majesty.

Mr. Benson's grandmother was also a sister to King Leopold 1st of the Belgians, his grandmother and Leopold 2d, being first cousins and making Mr. Benson a distant cousin to Albert, present king of Belgium.

Charles Benson, as locally known, is about sixty years of age, having been born in Evansville since boyhood. For the last twenty years or more he has lived at his place on Mill street where he has also followed his trade of house painting and interior decoration.

None of his royal forbears could have shown more zeal in outdoor sports than does Mr. Benson, and whenever he can snatch a few hours from his business he will be found in the field with rod and gun. Mr. Benson has recently retired from the decorative business here, and with his wife and son, Clyde, has moved to a farm near Clinton, where he will be found. There is excellent fishing, and he has had much to do with his change of location. The oldest son, Will, is still in Evansville, where he is employed by the postoffice department as mail carrier.

AUTOMOBILE COMPETITION.

Roads that do a heavy tourist business have been complaining about their losses through automobile competition. With a good-sized family, the saving by using a motor can be very considerable. It is one of the economies which people plan in advance to offset the cost of the car. But as a matter of fact there may not be much saving here. The average motor party probably spends as much in hotel bills and garage fees as it saves. But they think they are saving the price of the railroad passage, which amounts to the same thing. The effect is seen in the passenger earnings of any line doing a tourist business. In the commuter towns around the large cities, the motor partly takes the place of the train. In the plainer communities, the working people still scramble for the 7:12 train for the city office as they did of yore. But in wealthier neighborhoods the sociable sight of the whole masculine element rushing en masse for the 8:34 is no more. The swift moving motor gives the business man five minutes longer over his egg and coffee.

The railroads for the time being will be hard put to it to make economies to counterbalance this loss. Perhaps they could cut off some nearly empty sleeping and parlor cars. Many of these are hauled over long distances with three or four people long in the sofa seats. These cars are heavy and it costs good money to haul them.

The railroads will always continue to be the great democratic highway for the mass of the people. Long tours in a motor car have zest for a time. But in time it ceases to be a novelty. The train covers the greatest distance in the least time and the greatest certainty. It costs more and more money to build a railroad, so that an existing right of way gets more and more valuable. The country is growing, and three will be many freight shipments additional for every motor party that is lost.

MOST OPTIMISTIC.

President Wilson has issued his proclamation designating Thursday, the twenty-fifth of November, as Thanksgiving day, and it suggests the blessings which the American people have enjoyed and for which they well may return praise and thanks to the Almighty, the fact that this country is at peace while nearly all Europe is at war, and the fact that abundant crops have rewarded the American farmer's toil and increased this country's ability to be of service in a world crisis. The president also refers to the prosperity which is coming to the United States while neighboring nations are shaken by distress and disaster.

It is a coincidence that contemporaneously with the release of the President's proclamation arrives word from the commercial metropolis of the union that a general revival of freight traffic, unequalled since 1907, is reported by almost every railroad entering New York city or with terminals on the New Jersey shore across the Hudson river. Also, that steamship companies have pressed into service every possible craft to carry the enormous volume of exports across the Atlantic. Every vessel that sails out of New York harbor for Europe, from clipper to passenger liner, rides low in the water with a cargo crowding the holds. Merchandise exports from the port of New York last month broke all previous records. Their value was $163,000,000. In September, 1914, exports from New York were a little under $62,000,000.

If it were not for the fact that are entertained regarding the tariff situation that may develop after the war this country would be without a cloud to mar its rejoicing at the approach of Thanksgiving. As matters stand, there is ample reason for residents of this fortunate land to prepare for the observance of their annual festival with a feeling of devout thankfulness.

ADVERTISING AS A TIME-SAVER.

Probably one great reason why advertising is so extremely influential is that it is such a time-saver. If a person has a certain article to buy, he could of course go around to every store in the place and see what every merchant had to offer. This would take an interminable time, the loss of which would be far more than the result to be gained. Also one would be so tired by the time he got to the store, that he would not be able to make a choice. As the old proverb says, "he might walk all through the woods and pick up a crooked stick at last."

The common sense way is to look through newspapers for advertisements in the line desired. The merchant who has enterprise and ability to pick up good bargains has enterprise enough to tell the public about them. Those who do not make any effort to inform the public are ignorant. A quick glance through the newspapers saves interminable time, and is a reliable indicator as to where the best results can be had.

There is many a man who is not one bit afraid of any burglar that ever burglarized, who hesitates about getting up at 2:00 a. m. if his wife's request, because he fears the deadly rocking chair that is never where it was placed when the lights went out.

The question is asked as to what the baseball players are doing now? Don't know, but it may safely be assumed that they are called on more frequently to write their autographs than congressmen and cabinet ministers are.

Judging by the Washington newspaper dispatches, what the country wants to know is not so much the progress of the negotiations with Germany and Mexico, as what Mrs. Galt is going to wear.

car sent to the famous Morgan banking firm of New York was loaded down with choice hen fruit instead of gold sovereigns, after all.

This is the time of the year when the average citizen feels justified in emulating the example of the famous "Peter the Pumpkin Eater." The average pumpkin pie is just as good as it ever was.

Let us hope that no one will get funny with the United States while it is changing its engines in its steamships and cleaning out its Panama canal.

Watchful waiting may be all right for Mexico, but President Wilson does not mean to have it apply to the navy if it is possible to avert it.

As the Mexicans have not got onto the idea of dropping bombs on non-combatants, they can't be called a civilized power.

Order! Won by a Nose. King Solomon was again handing down justice in the royal courtroom.

"Case of Yacup vs. Yacup," bawled the court clerk. "It's this way, your honor," explained Felix Yacup. AMERICANS SERVING IN "TILL DEATH OR PEACE"

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Oct. 27.—Adult Americans whose adventures in Europe tempted them to enlist in European belligerent armies must remain soldiers until they are killed or the war is ended.

The American embassy in London, which has been successful in having the British government release American prisoners of war, could not extend this service to the adults.

In answer to many appeals from men who joined the Canadians and who have survived hard fighting, the embassy passed the question to the State department at Washington. The department's answer quoted the following order of 1901, which is still in force:

"The Department of State, in an instruction to the United States Consul at Lawrence, Kansas, during the Boer war held that American citizens who willfully take up arms in the service of a foreign state must bear the consequences of his act, and that the British government was a foreign power, to be protected by this government."

Previous to receipt of this instruction, inquiry by the embassy at the British war office elicited the statement that the British government was unwilling to release American adults who have taken the King's oath.

So, American fighters must keep on fighting until death or peace musters them out.

"LOVE COTTAGE" PLANS USED IN MILWAUKEE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 27.—The architectural ideas which Frank Lloyd Wright embodied in his famous "Love Cottage" at Spring Green, have been adopted by some Milwaukee builders and cottages constructed along those lines are now being erected in Milwaukee.

The main ideas in the cottages designed by Wright lies in the light and ventilation systems. The entire side of the cottage is open, consisting of windows, and all space in the library which is not occupied by book cases provides a window. Bedrooms have four windows each. In the kitchen the entire house is about as light as outdoors.

GERMANY WILL NOT NEED IMPORT AID TO FEED THE COUNTRY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Oct. 27.—German farmers will continue to feed the country without the aid of overseas imports, in the opinion of Prof. Gerlach, an authority in agricultural chemistry. Speaking before the German Agricultural Society at its yearly meeting at Berlin, he gave details showing to what extent in 1914 and 1915 the yield of crops was increased by using sulphur of ammonia and cyanamide, a combination of atmospheric nitrogen with calcium, as fertilizers. In these fertilizers, he says, German farmers have a fully satisfactory substitute for the nitrate of soda which they had been importing to the amount of about 800,000 tons a year. Prof. Gerlach regards the new industry of extracting nitrogen from the atmosphere as of great promise for the future of the German food supply. He said that the factories for its recovery, mostly begun since the outbreak of the war, are now finished or nearing completion, and that when they are all in operation they will produce yearly an equivalent of 120,000 tons of pure nitrogen or already considerably more than half of what was formerly imported. A considerable proportion of this is now being used by the military authorities for making ammunition, but with the war, he is available for fertilizing purposes. The increase of the output of all kinds of crops can be fertilized with cyanamide, Prof. Gerlach advised that it be used mainly for increasing the grain yield; potatoes—the staple crop by far produced in Germany—can do very well with a cheap fertilizer, as is proved by the splendid crop of this year.

MEMBERSHIP OF LABOR UNIONS IS INCREASED GREATLY IN ENGLAND

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Oct. 27.—Membership of labor unions in England increased by nearly three-quarters of a million persons during the year 1913, according to a belated report just issued by the Registrar General. The total membership at the end of the year was 3,265,000.

This growth, which is far in excess of any previously recorded, is attributed to extended propaganda work and improved organization during a period of great industrial unrest. The largest increase occurred in the National Union of Railwaymen, the membership of which more than doubled. During the same period there was a corresponding increase in the numbers of the various unions, and at the end of the year the aggregate membership of the labor organizations reached nearly 335,000,000.

STUDENTS MUST TAKE THE BUMPERS TO SEE THE CHICAGO CONTEST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Oct. 27.—Students of Wisconsin who are going to attend the Chicago-Wisconsin football game at Chicago on Saturday, will have to ride in either coaches or on the bumpers.

The request that the Milwaukee road supply a stock car for a hundred or more variety men so that they could save money was not granted on account of the ruling of the interstate commerce commission on a case in the east. It is, however, estimated that over a thousand students will follow the team to St. Louis and the announcement has appeared in the college paper giving the leaving time of freight trains to Chicago. It is expected that a large number of students will take advantage of it.

FRENCH CAMPAIGN AGAINST ALCOHOL APPEARS IN DRAMA

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Paris, Oct. 27.—The French campaign against alcohol has reached the stage in the form of a revival of Emile Zola's powerfully realistic drama, "Le Docteur Mystère," at the Odeon. Between the acts, after the wash house scene, the washerwomen in their aprons, white stockings and with sleeves rolled up for business circulate through the audience soliciting contributions for the war relief funds. This revival has been one of the most successful theatrical productions during the war.

The great army of photoplay fans who have before been captivated by the charming talents of Marguerite Clark, the dainty star of the Famous Players Film Co., will be thoroughly delighted by her splendid performance.

ance in the latest Paramount release, "Helene of the North," at the Apollo tonight.

Specially created for this entrancing little star, "Helene of the North," provides Miss Clark with innumerable opportunities for the exploitation of her wonderful pantomimic power. Moreover, it presents a story with a construction so new and different that it will probably be conceded to be one of the greatest screen novelties ever created.

In all the annals of the screen few stories have equalled "Helene of the North" in originality of conception and construction. As Helene, Marguerite Clark is as sweet and entrancing as she has always been, and much more effective in a dramatic manner than she has ever before been on the screen.

Pauline Frederick in "The Eternal City."

An elaborate picturization of Hall Caine's "The Eternal City," which is familiar to theatergoers in dramatic form, in which Viola Allen starred some years ago, will be presented at the Apollo on Tuesday. Pauline Frederick is the Donna Roma in the film version, and a beautiful and convincing one. Utmost care has been taken in the setting, and the scenes which were almost without exception taken in Rome are exceedingly beautiful; particularly one of the gathering mob in the Coliseum carrying burning torches which flare up against the walls and bring out with wonderful clearness the majestic beauty of the scenes of equal beauty—the Vatican gardens, the Castle of St. Angelo shimmering in the distance, and a sweeping view of the flowing Tiber. The story follows that of the book and the play, with a few slight changes. It is well acted, both in the principal and in the minor roles, and no pains have been spared in the luxurious settings throughout. The advance sale of seats has already started.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Outline of the Story of "The Juggernaut."

Everything we would say about the story "The Juggernaut" is so pale and poor and thin compared to the tremendous climax of this, the Colossus of railway drama—that we shall give only an outline of the plot.

Two young men, one the brilliant son of poor parents, the other the dissolute heir of a great railway king, become friends at college.

One thinks he has accidentally killed a drunken rowdy in saving the other's life—they two only know this secret.

Both fall in love with the same girl—who marries the rich boy only after his death. She withdraws from the race because of his poverty.

Years later one becomes president of his father's old railroad—the other a righteous, fearless district attorney. Both again worship the same girl—daughter of the old sweetheart of both—one with a father's deep affection—the other because she is her mother's counterpart.

The district attorney bitterly attacks the railroad in the courts. His former chum threatens to expose him as a murderer.

And now imagine the girl on a train approaching a bridge which cannot possibly stand its weight. Both men know this. Both are rushing madly by automobile and motor boat to intercept it.

You see all this. See the girl's sweet face at the window of the flying train—feel the swaying of the automobile as it skids desperately around sharp turns and the bounding of the motor boat slashing through rough waters.

Both men and the train come crashing into the picture at the same instant—too late!

For a moment that seems an eternity, you feel yourself sitting almost under the tottering trestle as the enormous engine—a mass of whirling steel—leaps thundering and hurtling into the empty air and falls shrieking to the swirling river.

The big coaches crumple like cardboard before your eyes and pile themselves up on the wreck—their passengers floundering and struggling in the debris.

Again you see the girl—Again her father—

Again—the man—

The car of Juggernaut rolls on. But who are the victims?

Come and see this tremendous spectacle.

It is shown at the Majestic tomorrow and Friday, starting at 2:15, 3:45, 7:15, 8:30, and 9:45.

Birth of a Nation Story of a "Lost Cause" and Discovery of a Better One.

Stirring scene from the magnificent film production, "The Birth of a Nation," at Myers Theatre, all next week, starting Sunday, matinee.

tion's" most potent charm, answered: "It's greatest charm lies in the fact that it is the story of a 'lost cause'."

A brilliant journalist who has witnessed and enthused over the many remarkable glories of the inimitable work, takes up the master's words and rounds out the sentence for him by saying—"and the discovery and fulfillment of a much better one."

For "The Birth of a Nation" is far too grand to be local to any one part of our glorious country, too broad to over again a regret or a brooding over spilled milk—it is the story, splendid, living, surviving likeness of a great Nation coming to a mutual and substantial understanding.

Those who witness it when it is presented at the Myers for week of October 31st will not declare the spectacle a "lost cause."

Do not view it wholly as a picture—remember, while you see it, though you are but looking at living men, both men and beasts, and faithful reproductions of things and scenes that were, that your mind is living in another generation, that you are seeing the very things that our country's souls were tried and that these people are bleeding and dying in exact counterpart of those who bled and died and suffered then—for your edification.

It is certainly a great and wonderful work and no one has gainsayed that much. Those who bitterly denounce it only do so because the opposite to their liking has thus been so enchantingly set forth. If it were a weak or purposeless production, the public would never have heard anything about it.

Just listen to them fight in the columns of the great papers about it—one says it is a beautiful libel, and the other contends it only exposes the truth that has for half a century been hidden, and the controversy goes on and will go on as long as the picture is being run.

Witness it by all means during its presentation here—it will furnish you reflection for years and years to come.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The dramatic moment reached in "The Second in Command"—the big Francis X. Bushman production made by the Quality Pictures Corporation—on the battlefield in South Africa when a conspiring brother officer reveals he has been false to his friend by using despicable means to separate him from the woman he had won for his fiancée. The events which lead up to this incident show love made possible through seeing a picture of a handsome officer in uniform hanging in a public gallery, the meeting between the counterpart of the picture in life and the girl, their wedding and betrothal, and then the entrance of the serpent in the person of a brother officer who is in love with the girl. This officer and the girl's brother conspire to break the engagement and succeed. It is not until the scene on the battlefield is reached, when the conspiring officer is wounded and believes himself about to die, and is being succored by the man he has abused, that the full strength and dramatic power of the play is reached. Soldierly in action, in ambush and on the defensive, with a battalion of cavalry coming to their relief, afford sensational and thrilling moments that prove irresistible. This Quality-Metro production will be on the Metro programme at the Myers theatre on Oct. 28-29, for the first time in this city.

A SPLENDID PICTURE CREATION AT MYERS

"Silver Threads Among the Gold" Presented Last Evening Full of Interesting Scenes—Quaint Humor and Delightful Characters.

An exceptionally large audience viewed the picturization of the immortal song "Silver Threads Among the Gold" at Myers Theatre last evening.

No photoplay that has been presented to date contains so many novel and interesting scenes. It picturizes a story of heart and home interest, with its quaint humor, its characters are real live human beings portrayed by an excellent cast of actors headed by Mr. Richard Jose, who are experienced in natural acting and it leaves an impression that makes one feel better for having seen it.

Some of the most startling photography yet seen including scenes taken at night, astonished the spectators.

"Silver Threads Among the Gold" will be shown at Myers Theatre again this evening.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU HAS NO BUSINESS NOW

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 27.—The Central Unemployed Body for London has practically gone out of business, because there is no work for it to do. Organized primarily to find work for the unemployed in London, it now finds there are no unemployed to find work for. The war so far from increasing unemployment and poverty, as was generally anticipated when the conflict began, has had the contrary effect.

"After nearly fifteen months of war," said Mr. Brislley Harper, president at a meeting of the organization, "there is not only no evidence of distress, but there is an abundant evidence of abnormally plentiful employment and exceptionally high wages. Nor do the reports we have received indicate that the increased cost of living has led to an increase of poverty and destitution in any part of the nation may be found in the fact that owing to the great demand for juvenile labor, young wage-earners have been able to supplement the family income to an unprecedented extent."

Under these circumstances, Mr. Harper explained, it had been decided to close most of the offices of the organization and to retain only enough clerks to keep the machinery at the head office going.

Went down to see "The Birth of a Nation" this afternoon and it is really "The Right Wonder of the World" for nothing like it has ever been offered in pictures.

The musical score is a feature in itself. Never in all my life have I heard anything like the production nor heard any musical score so well rendered by an orchestra, like this one carried by "The Birth of a Nation" company.

I trust you will do the largest business in the history of your house with this wonderful attraction and feel that you will for it sure is "THE REAL THING."

Resinol Stopped Itching Immediately.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 11, 1914.—"My entire body, even my eyelids, was completely covered with blisters as large as a pea. When one would burst water would come from it, and then it would turn into a very painful sore. The burning and itching were something terrible, and I COULD NOT SLEEP nor rest. I think I had one of the worst cases of eczema a human being ever had."

"I used eight different kinds of remedies without success. I then tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and it stopped the itching IMMEDIATELY. I gradually noticed a change for the better. Now I am entirely cured, and am without a pimple or blemish on any part of my body."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown motion" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headaches—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Edited by MRS. ABBIE HELMS

"Let Us Meet and Counsel Together"

ART LEAGUE.
The first meeting of the Art League for the present season was held at the Library Hall on Friday, Oct. 22. In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. Pembler, presided, and the new secretary, Mrs. E. M. Parmlee, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Reports of committees were heard and other business was transacted and then, as it was "Federation Time," the rest of the meeting was devoted to the reports of the delegates to the state federation meeting. The resume of the first day's proceedings had been prepared by Mrs. Nuzum, and as she was expected to be called away for a fortnight, her report was read by Mrs. Helms. Mrs. Nuzum mentioned the exercises when the address of welcome and the invocation were given by La Crosse ladies, and then she went on to detail the reports of the various committees.

The correspondence secretary showed that twelve new clubs had been added to the federation this year, making a total of 211 clubs with a membership of 1,124. The federation is a national organization, and the report of the treasurer showed that the state federation had undertaken the task of preserving the site of the first capitol of the state of Wisconsin at a cost of $100.

The suggestion that there is something antagonistic between home life and the work of the world, was vigorously combated in an address by Mrs. Aylward of Madison. She said in part: "We like to think that every woman who seeks to make her home a place of peace, love, and truth and holy purpose. It is the club movement more than any other factor that has made woman realize that to accomplish the work of the world, she must go beyond the four walls. In that wide love for humanity, that so-called social consciousness, the appeal of the unfortunate, the weak and the down-trodden, have been heard, and we have tried to help them in every way possible. It is for this end that the various committees of the federation have been formed. Our beloved Mrs. Nuzum, who says, 'If she were not convinced that it was a religious work she would not devote her entire time and energy to it.' She looks upon club women as missionaries and refers to her visits to clubs as pastoral calls. It is this special viewpoint that is bringing about such magnificent results. Mrs. Pembler in her report dwelt especially on the lecture given by Prof. Zeublin on 'Peace Makers and Peace Makers.' He suggested that every young man of the United States after graduating from college or university give one year of his time before starting on a career to the service of the government. Each to be put to work on governmental projects in the several lines of engineering, professional, mechanical or engineering, in which they had been trained. Thus a large body of the best citizens of the land would be recruited who could be available to the government when needed. Mrs. Pembler as a member of the Art League was especially interested in the work of the committee. This body has very little money to work with, but with a great expenditure of time and trouble they have gotten together a traveling collection of about 100 original pictures of Wisconsin artists. Among those exhibiting are Mr. and Mrs. Schultz of Delavan, Richard Lorenz and many others. The collection will be brought here for a public exhibition on March 29 to continue till April 1. This feature of the federation work is something new but cannot help but prove helpful to the smaller art clubs. During the exhibition at La Crosse an explanatory talk concerning the pictures was given by Mrs. Bertha Schultz of Delavan. Mrs. Schultz is represented in the collection by a beautiful painting representing motherhood. Mention was made of the splendid address made by Mrs. Pennington and also of those of many others given at the convention, but space can only be found for a small selection taken from the address of Mrs. Kinsman: 'There are also some spiritual needs as I see them; real needs which we must meet with the finest and most rewarding success. Any organization that would grow and live must render some service to humanity. As I have tried to emphasize the past year, the service we must render is the service of the home-maker. The enlarged duties of woman as home-maker, as the one who organizes, as the one who leads, as the one who broadens service and a wider field of activity. Woman must be home-maker in the community and in the state. Our federation have a more commendable task of helping the guardians of the home to meet successfully their constantly enlarging task. This calls for a variety of efforts and means that we must have our many departments of work.'

SCENARIO BY MRS. LOUISE BRAND.
There are preparations now being made in Milwaukee for taking pictures for a photoplay by Mrs. Louise Brand. It is to be done by the Essanay film company and is a picture play depicting the life of a woman in Wisconsin. As staged at present, the work is being done in the back yard of the University of Wisconsin building in Milwaukee, on Van Buren street. One scene is already completed representing T. J. Wertheim, field worker for the Anti-Tuberculosis association, giving a lecture in a small hall with about fifty Milwaukeeans as villagers. A few lantern slides showing the work of the association were shown in the scene and these were photographed. It is the first time that a scene has ever been attempted. Mrs. Brand is well known in Janesville where she graduated at high school, and after her marriage engaged in newspaper work. Later on she went to Milwaukee to take a position on the Milwaukee Sentinel. Her many friends hope that the new play will be a success.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.
The annual state convention of the King's Daughters was held at Sheboygan beginning Oct. 21. Sheboygan is a city of about 30,000 population situated in the midst of a dairy country and with many furniture factories contributing to the prosperity of the city. For these reasons it has some times been called "The City of Chairs and Children." The delegation from Janesville consisted of six members: Mrs. John Cunningham, Mrs. W. Clinton, Mrs. L. G. Catchpole, Mrs. A. L. Krotz, Mrs. W. B. Stoddard and Mrs. G. A. Crossman. The order in Sheboygan is a very strong one, comprising seven circles. One of these is maintaining a day nursery which cares for about twenty-five children daily and provides them with their noon lunch. The morning hours of the day were devoted to a meeting of the executive board and a visit to the day nursery. At the afternoon session Mrs. Edward Hammet of Sheboygan delivered the address and Mrs. John Cunningham of this city, responded. The evening address was given by Mrs. Ida Mansfield of Burlington, Ia. "She is a world-wide religion could save the world," she said. "There is more need at the present time for this body than at any time in the past; that the universal thought of the age was doing, rather than thinking, and that the nation could become a country of ideals by capitalizing the story of the order of the Kings Daughters; that a worldwide religion could save the world, and that the order could accomplish the widest good when it entered the lives of the people." The order has been organized for state work for only four years, so it is comparatively new in the field, but much interest was evinced in the state meeting and it was attended by 300 or 400 people. The annual meeting for 1916 will be held in Janesville, and the election of officers resulted in the following list:

President—Mrs. E. M. Parmlee, Sheboygan.
Vice-President—Mrs. L. G. Catchpole, Janesville.
Secretary—Miss Jennie Schrage, Trempealeau.
Treasurer—Mrs. L. C. Chambers, Milton Junction.

A few facts in regard to the origin of this order and the kind of work it is doing will be especially appropriate at the present time. The order of the King's Daughters and Sons began its existence in the union of ten women, each and all desiring to do something for the world. They had no thought of a worldwide organization, but their own greater advancement in true Christian living and their usefulness in practical good works, could be extended. They had no thought of a worldwide organization, but their own greater advancement in true Christian living and their usefulness in practical good works, could be extended.

They met for the first time at the residence of Mrs. Margaret Bottoms on the morning of January 13, 1886, to attend a consideration of the good to be gained and the good to be done, decided to organize themselves into an order, or sisterhood of service. Mrs. Bottoms was chosen as president and Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson as secretary.

Of the various names proposed for this order, the one suggested by Mrs. Irving, the King's Daughters, was most favorably received. Mrs. Irving, a well known educator of New York City, had been in the habit of giving this name to young ladies as they went out into the world from her school, and this has given rise to the mistaken impression that the order originated in these little groups of students.

For the badge a little silver Maltese cross was chosen. Realizing that many persons might be unable to procure this cross, a purple ribbon was also to be recognized as indicating membership in the order. Gradually, however, the use of the cross has become almost universal, and the use of the ribbon has correspondingly diminished.

The word "Tens" from the "Lend-a-Hand" movement, was freely borrowed, but it soon became necessary to abandon it for the word "Circle" as the impracticability and undesirability of limiting to ten the bands of service for a common purpose, was discovered. The mottoes:

"Look up and not down."
"Look forward and not back."
"Look out and not in."
"Lend a hand."
were also borrowed from the same source, as, in one sense, was likewise the watchword, "In His Name," which was for all of which is gladly acknowledged.

At the end of its first year it numbered about seventy thousand members, and from this time its growth became phenomenal. From this necessity, the order was organized as a worldwide organization, which has multiplied within the last two decades, and has realized the dream of a worldwide organization of women working together. "In His Name" members of every religious denomination.

In these later years, its labor goes quietly on, side by side with much similar work which was unknown and undeveloped when the order came into being. To judge our practical results perhaps, the order's most valuable phase of work has been that connected with the relief of the sick and suffering of mankind. The development of every section of the country, has resulted in hospital work, every effort, from bedside visiting to the entire maintenance of the hospitals, has been maintained by the order. Hospitals maintained by the order exist in Indiana, Florida, Georgia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Texas, and in a number of places in Virginia, Kentucky and Mississippi.

To mention the helpful agencies and institutions aided by the order would be practically to catalogue every well known and very many comparatively little known organizations. Among these are the Crittenton Hospital, Travelers' Aid Society, Humane Society, Needlework Guild, Deep Sea Fishermen's Guild, Anti-Tuberculosis Movement, Tuskegee, McAll Mission, Shut-in and Nursing Societies, Prisoners' Aid Society, Children's Aid Society, Vacation Schools, Babies' Friendly Society, Junior Republics, Country Visiting Association, Little Mothers' Aid Association, Red Cross Society, Flower Mission League Aid Society, Associated Charities and very many others. But in none of these larger things does the spirit of the order show itself more truly and more beautifully than in the countless small things, the vast majority of which are never recorded anywhere.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN COUNT.
Criticism has been made regarding the order of the King's Daughters, that it was largely made up of women and children and professional reformers. The criticism is singularly inept, when we consider the business men are very important members of the community. But so are women and children. Women and children count, even did before and more than they do to count more and they are coming to count more and more every passing year. A parade made up of women and children only might conceivably be much more striking than a parade made up of the most financially substantial members of the community.

PHILOMATHIAN CLUB.
This organization will meet with Mrs. Carrie Koebelin on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 30. The program is as follows:

"Mutual Relations of North and South America," Mrs. Kerch.
"Columbia," Mrs. Gibbons.
"The Monroe Doctrine and Our Foreign Policy," Mrs. Taylor.
AN IDYL OF ATHENA.
Eighteen times the golden cycles Of the years have been completed. Since we, followers of Athena, First held counsel all together, In the golden autumn weather, We appointed storytellers Who would wisely guide and lead us Through the realms of lore and learning.

Of historic lore and wisdom, Years of profit, years of pleasure, We have received in brimming measure. Now again the year is olden, Leaves are turning, buds are golden. Storm winds whisper, "It is colder, Grim old Winter is growing bolder. Wild wood creatures of the forest Hide away in leafy coverts, And they whisper, 'It is colder.' And the Tree says, 'It is colder.' And it stands with naked shoulder. It has lost its leafy mantle, Like a skeleton it quivers. Like a ghost it quakes and shivers. But we need not wintry weather. Hearts are warmer close together. Another time we are beguiling. Hear growl younger when you are smiling.

Children for today, we're playing, Far from all our care we're straying. Toss the burden from the shoulder. Pilgrims by the way, we linger, Hear the story and the singer. (Thus begins a storyteller.)

"All these things of which I will remind you have been seen as with inspired vision, through the keen perception and genius of many writers and artists."

"Four and twenty moons we have been journeying together, through the waters of society, eastward, southward, westward, ever onward. One the shore of the sunrise ocean we heard the wild storm that beat against the rock-bound cliffs where once centuries ago a band of exiles moored their barque on the wild England shore. We saw again the little group standing on the icy rock at Plymouth singing hymns of praise and thanksgiving."

"The stars heard and the sea. And the echoing aisles of the wild wood rang. With the anguish of the free. They met, privation, starvation, sickness and death. Their dead they buried in lonely vales on wooded hillsides and dared not mark their graves. But their lives never faltered. It was a wonder that from such vital spiritual fibre came the sturdy growth of an immense commonwealth. Wonderful old Boston. Marvellous old Boston. Birthplace of many religious cults but always the home of culture."

"Long we lingered among the literary landmarks of old Boston. We entered the home of Longfellow, of Craeger House, and we were gathered around the long table in the great dining room all his friends. We went with W. D. Howells trudging through the snow from the city to the country over rough roads in wintry blasts, to the Friday night meetings of the old Sophocles club. What a wonderful group of literary workers was there. Longfellow, most of the time. The White Mr. Longfellow, as Bjorn Bjornson, the Norwegian writer, called him. They were all dreamers and philosophers, Longfellow, Lowell, Holmes, Whitman, Hawthorne, Bryant, Irving, and all the others. They have all solved the great Mystery. They have found out that most of their sweet and wise philosophy is true."

"Journeying westward, we saw the quaint old Dutch town of Manhattan. We saw as of old the sun parting the mists of the ocean above the sloping roofs of the houses and towers of their projecting stoops. We saw across the surging waters of the harbor and the wide North river, the great domes of the city, the Elysian fields of old Orange, the golden vineyard cycle we saw on Bedloe's Island the statue of the Goddess of liberty enlightening the world. In retrospect we saw Washington, the surveyor, crossing the Potomac on a low footbridge and climbing the forest covered hills. Many times he stood on Capitol Hill and gazed afar upon the fruitful fields of Maryland. Fair as a garden the land of the old camp ground. Here was held the council of the United Indian Nation. Here was enacted the sweet romance of Pocahontas. It seems like a far call from the Lady of the White House to this Indian of Pocahontas, will take her place as first lady of the land."

"We journey through the Sunny South land. We saw her mourning and doleful after the war, restored to former beauty by years of peace and prosperity. Beautiful South land. Her soft winds are ever fragrant with the rich perfume of roses and magnolias."

"We saw the marvelous cities along the coast of the sunset ocean. They are scattered along the grassy slopes like a chain of jewels upon my lady's tresses. We saw the cross of Christ erected on the edge of the wilderness, always in the advance of civilization. We saw it again on last Easter morning planted on the crest of one of the Rocky Mountains. And thousands climbed the wooded mountain side and united in a service of prayer for the world's peace. At sunrise among the morning mists they sang and the stars heard and the sea."

"We saw again the emblem of the Cross on the highest peak of the Rocky Mountains. It is the Greek Cross, its four arms extending North, East, South, West. It is on the top of the great divide, the division of the waters. In the early morning is heard strange, weird music in the upper heavens, commencing in low sweet strains and increasing in power to deep rich chords and a heavy diapason."

"Journeying onward, we saw the great Wonder land of America, the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone and the Painted Rocks. Here in a massive gorge fifteen hundred feet deep Nature's artists have been at work for ages. On the rocky crags are Rhenish castles with their towers, draw bridges and embattlements. And there also is a vast amphitheatre, fluted colonades, low altars and dim recesses. And up all is a soft dappery of Oriental colors, shifting, shimmering, iridescent, all the colors of the prism. Always moistened by hidden springs, the surface of the rocks reflect this brilliant coloring as if sprinkled by millions of star-eyed diamonds."

"We hastened through the canyons of Arizona and Colorado, and then easily to the Painted desert of New Mexico. This is rarely seen by tourists because because the trip is hard one and has many discomforts. Eighteen times the golden cycle of the year has been completed,

Since we started out together. In the golden autumn weather. Now again the year is olden. Leaves are turning brown and golden. Storm winds whisper, "It is colder." Grim old Winter is growing bolder. Wildwood creatures of the forests Hide away in leafy coverts, And they whisper, "It is colder." And the Tree says, "It is colder." And it stands with naked shoulder. It has lost its leafy mantle. Lost its mossy velvet kirtle. Like a skeleton it quivers. Like a ghost it shakes and shivers. But we need not wintry weather. Hearts are warmer close together. Father Time we are beguiling. Hearts grow younger when you are smiling.

Children for today we're playing, From all our care we're straying. Tell us not that we are older; Toss the burden from the shoulder. Grins by the way, we linger— Hear the story and the singer."

THE CHORICLES.
These words are written in the Choralicles of the Choralicles. "And it came to pass, that all the years of the Past opened wide their golden doors. And we went down through them. And we saw the wondrous visions which will keep with us, at times, and we will speak to us in our quiet hours. To him who in the love of Nature Holds communion with her visible forms. She speaks a various language."

(Thus ends The Idyl of Athena.)
Written by Mrs. Lee Beers and given by her at the meeting of the Athenian club held at the home of Miss Helen Welch on Tuesday, Oct. 19.

STATE CONVENTION OF D. A. R.
The Nineth Annual State conference of the D. A. R. of Wisconsin was held in Marshfield Oct. 19 and 20.

It was estimated that about one hundred visitors from all parts of the state and officers of the society were present.

A number of splendid papers were given by several state chairmen. Mrs. Richard Hartmann made an eloquent plea for the prevention of the desertion of the flag. Mrs. John Joys and Mrs. E. C. Pors gave many new suggestions for patriotic, educational and their children. Mrs. John Rexford made report of the committee on Welfare of Women and Children, and Miss Burlington of Shullsburg gave a very interesting report on the organization of Historical Societies and Historical Research. These reports showed the broadening of the work of the D. A. R. society along civic education and the lines of historical and patriotic outlook for next year.

Tuesday evening a beautiful reception and musicale was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Marsh, which was attended by the visiting D. A. R. chapters and many of the townspeople. At the conference the "Salute to the Flag" was given much prominence. Mrs. J. C. Marsh, who was in charge, pledged allegiance to our flag and to the Republic for which it stands—one nation indivisible with liberty and justice for all."

REST ROOM IN FARIBAUT.
Mrs. J. B. Day has just returned from Faribault, Minn., where she has been doing some coaching work in the preparation of a play by amateurs.

She has some interesting observations in regard to the town which is a place of about 10,000 inhabitants. The streets are all parts of a fine boulevard system, and are well lighted. The town is a fine place in which to live, and is a place of great convenience to the families of the farmers, and also for the ladies of the town, and is greatly appreciated by them.

The time must surely come when Janesville will have a place of this kind, so let us adopt the slogan, "Rest Room for Janesville."

When a room of this kind becomes vacant that is available for the purpose an effort will be made to secure it. Financial aid from the city and county is being sought. The various women's organizations are ready to take hold of the project when a convenient place can be secured. So, until then, bear in mind the motto "Rest Room for Janesville."

PLAN TO SIMPLIFY LAWS OF DRAINAGE

Legislative Committee Will Begin Work on Subject Within a Few Weeks.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—The legislative investigation of the drainage laws of the state with a view toward working out a comprehensive code will be started in a few weeks by a special committee created by the last session of the legislature. On the senate side Senator H. A. Huber of Stoughton will take an active part. Speaker Whitte recently appointed Assemblyman E. Crosby of Neillsville and Assemblyman Nelson of Falk of Lake Mills to take the place of Assemblyman A. J. Hedding and George P. Hambrecht, both of whom have been appointed to positions in Gov. Philipp during the closing days of the session. The committee is empowered to codify and simplify the simplified drainage laws of the state, which have been done on this subject, but the bills before the legislature were never thoroughly considered by a committee. The measure upon which the committee is to be presented to the 1917 legislature with a recommendation for passage. The aim of the committee is to make the system of securing drainage districts simple, obviating litigation.

FRANCE PAYS HEAVY CARING FOR ALIENS

Protection and Cost of Concentration Camps is an Expense of a Vast Amount.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, Oct. 26.—The supervision and support of subjects of belligerent countries interned or allowed to reside in France has given the government a vast amount of work and entailed an expense of approximately $55,000,000 to date.

The government's policy has been to treat justly all subjects of countries at war with France residing within its territory at the outbreak of the war and to treat them as liberally as the necessary precautions for the nation's security would permit. The Associated Press is informed by Minister of the Interior Malvy, upon whom this great responsibility has devolved.

"At the beginning of hostilities," he continued, "it became necessary to intern in concentration camps 30,000 subjects of countries at war with France. That number has been reduced to 14,000 by the repatriation of a certain number by agreement between the interested powers, and by the repatriation of others. Some of the nation's security would permit. The Associated Press is informed by Minister of the Interior Malvy, upon whom this great responsibility has devolved.

There were 3,754 subjects of the Ottoman Empire residing in France before the declaration of war by Turkey.

A number of splendid papers were given by several state chairmen. Mrs. Richard Hartmann made an eloquent plea for the prevention of the desertion of the flag. Mrs. John Joys and Mrs. E. C. key. All of these have been allowed to reside here with the exception of about fifty whose antecedents made their internment necessary in the interests of the national defense. The interned civilians were sent to sixty-three different camps widely distributed throughout the country where they have been fed absolutely free of any cost to them and at an expense to the government of $15,000 a month. They have also received all necessary medical attendance free of charge. Some of these little colonies have even seen their numbers increased by births that have occurred under the most favorable conditions. "All the civilian camps are under the general direction of the interior department and are directly supervised by the prefect of the department. Order is generally maintained by a commissary of police who receives the requests and complaints of the interned and supervises their correspondence. There has been little for the commissaries to do, however, for the needs of the interned have, so far as possible, been anticipated by the government.

"No one in France has had less reason to complain than these people who feel their position keenly for the most part and appreciate that we have done what we could to make that position less painful.

"The Germans, Austrians and Turks who have merited the exceptional privileges of a residence permit have by the same measure escaped the sequestration of their property. In general they have showed themselves worthy of the favor."

Germans and Austrians to whom residence permits were accorded have themselves given very little trouble. It is stated at the prefecture of police. The supervision, however, has been quite a burden, because of the natural suspicion in which they were held in their neighborhoods. The prefect has been flooded with denunciations, sometimes signed sometimes anonymous, partly inspired by a spirit of vengeance, partly through excess of patriotism. Other persons have been obliged to change their residence as a consequence but the number of residence permits that have been withdrawn is insignificant.

HUNTERS! OIL GUNS FOR DUCKS START ON THEIR TRIP SOUTH
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Duluth, Minn., Oct. 27.—Flocks of wild ducks passed over Duluth early today, wedging their way south from northern Minnesota and Canada. The first blast of winter which manifested itself in the north of Monday, started the big migration. Hunters are arriving here from the north carrying the limit in mallards, all of which birds have the northern plumage, indicating that the real fight is in progress. Scores of duck hunters left here Monday night and on Tuesday for the Minnesota rice lakes to await the coming of the younger ducks which follow the old drakes south.

"HEART THROBS"

In response to an offer of $10,000 in prizes, more than 50,000 of the "plain people of America," as Lincoln loved to call them, sent to the publishers their favorite selections of poems grave and gay; of song and story; of famous gems of history; of world-renowned orations; and of apothegms of wisdom. Out of this vast array of contributions, U. S. Senator Allison and Admiral Dewey chose 840 as entitled to the awards for the best selections. That these unique volumes contain treasures to be had nowhere else is self-evident. What appealed to 50,000 people as the greatest, the best, the brightest, the most pathetic, the most humorous, the most consoling, the wisest words of counsel or admonition, must appeal to the masses with the same heart-stirring influence. "Heart Throbs" is a book for every mood. It is a book to pack in your valise when you travel, to while away many weary hours of loneliness or waiting. It is a book to keep with you at home for comfort, consolation or cheer. In short, it is a book that will find its way into the homes of the millions as the only book, aside from their books of devotion, that they must have for their hours of pleasure, of relaxation, and of self-instruction.

CHAPTER I.

Out of the Vine Maples.

Siletz sat, her knees drawn up to her chin, on the flat top of a fir stump. Beside her lay Coosmah, heavy muzzle on huge paws, his eyes as pale as the girl's were dark. They were hill-bred both. Perhaps that accounted for the delight both found in the solitude of this air, where they could look down toward the west on the feathery, green sea of close-packed pine and fir, of spruce and hemlock—and toward the east on the narrow strip of tide-water slough and the unpeopled shacks of the lumber camp huddled above its railway. It was the magnificent timber country of the great Northwest.

Siletz was wondering, as she always did, how far the mountains ran to the south, how far it was to that "Frisco" of which she had heard so much from the tramp loggers who came and went with the seasons, their "turkeys" on their backs and the joyous liberty of the irresponsible forever tugging at their eccentric souls.

Over the facing ridge she knew that the cold Pacific roared and coaxed on the ships, to play with them in the hell of Vancouver coast. She could hear it sometimes when the pines were still; yet she had never seen it.

She had pictures of it in her mind, many pictures. She knew well how it would look when she should see it—a gray floor, a world of it, shot through with the reds and purples of a tardy sun. Of the cities she had no clear pictures. They were artificial, man-made, therefore alien to her, who knew only nature, though she had listened intently to rangers from every corner of the globe; for Dally's lumber camp had seen a queer lot.

It all resolved itself into these dreams when she sat on the edge of a fir stump, or, better yet, in the excited cloud-high airiness of the very apex of the Hog Back.

There had been no sun, neither today nor for many days; and yet there was as surely presence of approaching night as if shadows forewarned. Siletz had hoped for a break, one of those short pageants when the sun should shoot for a moment into the gloom, transfiguring the world. Now, as she scanned the west, the dog suddenly rose from beside her, peering down with his huge head thrust forward, his pendulous ears swaying. A hundred feet below in a tangle of vine maple something was laboring. Presently the slim trees parted and out of their tangle struggled a horse, a magnificent black beast with flaring nostrils and full, excited eyes. After every few steps it turned its head to right or left with the instinct of the mountain breed to zigzag, and as often the man in the saddle pulled it sharply back.

With the first sight of the intruder the girl on the high stump had sprung up, leaning forward, a growing excitement in her face. It was the horse that caused it. Something was stirring within her all suddenly and her heart beat hard. She gripped her braids tight in both hands and swallowed.

"Blunderer," she said aloud. "Oh, the blunderer!"

Then she cupped her hands at her lips and called down: "Let him alone! He knows how to climb! Let him alone!"

The man looked up, startled, and tightened his grip on the reins. The gallant animal went down upon its side, rolling completely over, to lodge, feet downward, against a stone. The man swung sidewise out of the saddle, saving himself with a splendid quickness. Before he could gather himself for action the girl tore down upon him.

of tears. He saw also what gave him a strange feeling of shock—a faint, blue tracery extending from the left corner of her lips downward nearly to the point of the chin, a sharply broken fragment of a tattooed design. Her eyes were very dark and her hair, parted after the first fashion of woman, was straight and very dark also.

The accusing words irritated him. "You're right," he said coldly, "nothing could—in such a country. Stand back, please."

Siletz looked up at him and instinctively rose to her feet, though her slim body was alert with an unconscious readiness for prevention of something.

But the man only stepped to the black's head, tightened the rein a bit and clucked encouragingly.

"Come up," he said sharply, "up, boy!"

The horse stretched its head forward, arched its neck, gathered its feet and lurched mightily upward, finding difficulty and floundering a little by reason of the stone which had saved it from rolling down the mountain. It placed its feet gingerly, bracing against the declivity, shook itself vigorously, drew a good, long breath and turned its soft nose to investigate the girl. With a little gurgling cry her hands went out again to caress it, hungrily, forgetful of the man, her face alight with the joy of its escape from injury. She smiled and passed her hands along the high neck, over the shoulder, down to the knee, bending to finger with a deft swiftness the fetlock and pastern.

When she looked up again she smiled at the man frankly, her anger gone.

"He's all right, but you want to give him the reins. He knows how to go up all right. All Oregon horses can climb if you give them their time and way."

He slipped the bridle over his arm. "I'm looking for Dally's lumber camp. Can you tell me how to get there and how near I am?"

"It's right over the ridge. You'll see it from the top!"

"Thanks," he said, lifted his soft, gray hat perfunctorily and turned up the slope.

He took the ascent straight, with a certain grimness of purpose. Soon he felt a slight pull on the reins toward the left, which slackened immediately to repeat itself to the right. The black was trying to zigzag in the narrow play of the confining bridle. After an interval that tried him severely in muscle and breath the stranger reached the sharp crest of the ridge.

Below him lay the valley, the winding slough, the yellow huddle of the camp, the toy railway, with its tiny engine, the donkey whose puffing rose in a white spiral, the railways and the huge log trail winding up the other slope like a giant serpent. Even as he looked there came the staccato toots of the whistle-bob whose invisible line crept away into the hills to work with a volley of coughs, the spools screamed and the great steel rope lifted heavily along the trail.

Presently a long, gray shape, ghostly and sinister, came creeping over the lower ridge, gliding down the face of the hills, silent, relentless, a veritable thing of life. He leaned forward, watching it come to rest above the railway, halt a little while the antlike men darted here and there, and then roll sidewise into position against the stays.

When the small play of the woods was over, just as he started down he glanced involuntarily back along the way he had come.

The girl still stood by the bowlder looking up, her face illumined by that light he had noticed, and he was quick enough to comprehend that it was passionate longing for the big black behind him. She had forgotten his presence. Out of the ferns had crept the mammoth mongrel. They two stood together in a subtle comradeship which struck him by its isolated sufficiency.

CHAPTER II.

An Amazing Arrival.

It was quitting time—quitting time in the coast country, which means whatever time the light fades. Presently the loggers came creeping down the trail, sturdy men in spiked boots laced to the knees, blue flannel shirts, and for the most part, corduroys. They trooped down to the cook-shack, a long building of unpainted pine, its two side doors leading, the one into the dining room, the other sheltered by a rude porch, into the kitchen.

Inside, "Ma" Dally, a white-haired general of meals and men in their order, creaked heavily from oven to pine sink, her placid face flaming with the heat of the great steel range.

The eating room was long and narrow, its pine floor innocent of coverings. From end to end ran two long tables, neat in white oilcloth, with intervals of catchup bottles, pepper sauce, sugar bowls, cream pitchers, and solidly built receptacles for salt and pepper. Along both edges stood an array of white earthenware plates, flanked by bone-handled knives and forks and tin spoons.

At the west, beside an open door, was a high pine desk littered with papers, a telephone hung at one side. A small table stood before a window, with a rocking chair in proximity—one of those low, old-fashioned rocking chairs that old women use, and that invariably hold a patchwork cushion with green fringe, and a white knitted tid. That rocker was part of Dally's camp. It had followed the march of progress as the camp cut its way into the hills.

"It's my one comfort," Ma went to say, "though land knows I don't get to set in it more'n a quarter what I'd like."

As the loggers slid noisily on to the benches, their caulks giving up the mud they had held purposely for the swept floor, Siletz came and went, setting the substantial viands in the open spaces left in the expanse of white oilcloth. She exchanged a word here and there, always a sensible word, something of the work, the day, or the men themselves. She was putting a plate of cookies, sugar-sanded, with currants on top, between Jim Anworthy and a black-haired Pole, when a foot struck the step at the west door. There was something in the sound that drew every head around at once. A stranger stood against the misty darkness between the jambs.

He was young, apparently about twenty-five or six, well set up, with straight shoulders above narrow hips and a poise that claimed instant attention. He removed his soft hat, holding it in his hand, while his bright, blue eyes looked impersonally over the room. Over his shoulder a pair of big, dark ones peered anxiously, while a black muzzle with a small, white patch nosed his elbow aside.

"John Dally?"

It was a call that demanded, not a question.

From the head of the nearest table a giant of a man, easy natured, lax featured, loose joints banded together by steel sinews, rose lumberingly.

"I'm him," he said.

The man in the door brought his eyes sharply to focus on his face, reading it with lightning rapidity.

"I'm the Dillingworth Lumber company—or most of it," he said clearly, "and I've come to stay. Where shall I put my horse?"

There was a startled silence after these amazing words. An unexpressed ejaculation went from face to face up and down the tables. Then John Dally showed why he was the best foreman in that region. He got his self loose from the end bench and walked over to the door.

The Battle-Cry

It was easy now, thought the girl—she could take her time and be very sure.

Yet she shot and missed, and the man came on with the confidence of one who wears a talisman and fears no harm. Now he was almost at the steps and his pistol was barking viciously—then suddenly something in the mechanism of Juanita's rifle jammed and it lay useless and dead in her hands. She struggled with it, frantically jerking the lever, but before she had conquered its harking obstinacy she saw the oncoming figure leap up the steps at one stride and thrust his weapon forward over the table.

She even caught the glimmer of his teeth as a snarling smile parted his lips.

Then a rifle spoke behind her—a rifle in the hands of the man who had dragged himself to the firing line, and with his foot on the threshold Jim Fletcher reeled backward and rolled lumberingly down the steps to the ground.

"You got him!" she screamed. "You got him, Anse!"

It had been perhaps five minutes since she had called out to the men in the road, but it seemed to her that she had sustained a long siege. She saw the man who had fled crossing the fence and disappearing. Then very slowly she rose and turned to the room again.

Anse Hovey was lying on his face and the gun with which he had killed Jim Fletcher lay by his side, but his posture was so rigid and his limbs so motionless that the girl caught at her breast and reeled backward. She would have fallen had she not been supported by the table. Had the fight been lost, after all?

Slowly, and in a daze of reaction and fright, she moved forward and turned his body over and laid her ear to his heart.

It was still beating. The rifle had only jolted his weak and pain-racked body into unconsciousness, and as she held his head to her breast her eyes went about the room, where the pallid light was stealing now, and by the mantel she saw hanging the horn that Jerry Everson had given her.

Why had she not thought of that before? she asked herself accusingly. Why had she not sent its call for help out across the hills long ago? Then there came back to her mind the words of the mountain man when he had brought it over and had imitated the Hovey battle-call.

"Don't never blow that unless you wants ter start hell. When them calls goes out across the mountains every Hovey that kin tote a gun's got ter git up an' come."

If ever there had been a time when every Hovey should come it was this time. She laid Anse's head once more on the cushions and went to the mantel. Then, standing in the door, she drew a long breath.

She set the horn to her lips and blew. Out across the melting vagueness of the dim world floated the three long blasts and the three short ones. She waited a little while and blew again. That signal could not reach Anse Hovey's own house, because the ridge would send it echoing back in a shattered wave of sound. It would be better heard to the east, and after a time there came back to her waiting ears, very low and distant, yet very clear, an answer.

It came from the house of Milt McBriar, and Juanita's heart, torn and anxious as it was, leaped, for she knew that for the first time in the memory of man the Hovey call to arms had been heard and was being answered by a chief of the McBriars, and that as fast as horses could carry them he and his men would bring succor.

side lay a piece of paper reddened and spotted with blood—a marriage license.

"Milt," she cried out, "get Brother Anse; get him quick!" and she waved the piece of smeared paper in the boy's face.

Kneeling with her on the floor, Milt took the license from her hand, and when he saw what it was he shook his head.

"I'm afraid," he told her gravely, "I'm afraid it's too late. He can't hardly live."

"Get Brother Anse," she insisted wildly. "Get him quick! I'm going to be his wife." Her voice broke into a deep sob as she added: "If I can't be anything else, I'm going to be the Widow Hovey."

And when Brother Anse came he found Anse still alive, smiling faintly up into the face of the woman who sat with his head in her lap.

"I'm sorry," said the missionary simply, "that ye han't got a preacher that kin marry ye with due ceremonies, but I reckon I han't never been gladder ter do nothin' in my life—of only he kin git well."

"Brother Anse," Juanita Hovey told him, as she put a hand on each rough shoulder, "I had rather it should be you than the archbishop of Canterbury."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

People in the mountains still talk of how, while Anse Hovey lay on a white cot in the little hospital, young Milt McBriar set out toward Peril. He stopped for a moment at the house of Bad Anse Hovey, and within twenty minutes the hills were being raked. Young Milt killed a horse getting to Jeb McNash's cabin on Tribulation and Jer killed another getting to Peril. Then from Lexington came two surgeons as fast as a special train could bring them, and, thanks to a dogged life spark, they found Anse Hovey still lingering on the margin.

When they removed him from the operating table back to his cot and he opened his eyes to consciousness, the sun was coming through the shaded window, but even before he knew that, he saw her face bending over him and felt cool fingers on his forehead.

As his eyes opened her smile greeted him, and she brushed his lips with her own. Then, in a tone of command, she said: "You mustn't talk. The doctors say you may get well if you obey orders and fight hard. It's partly up to you, Anse."

Once more there hovered around the man's lips that occasional boyish smile.

"I reckon," he said slowly, "they'll have the hell of a time killin' me now!" Then he added in a tone of more grimness: "Besides, there's a score or two to settle."

The girl shook her head and smiled. Her fingers rested caressingly on the dark hair that fell over his forehead.

"No, Anse," she told him. "I settled most of them myself."

Even the detachment of the murder squad that had started its part in the woods and played for Peril before the fire turned back did not reach their destination, but scattered into the hillsides. When morning brought the news of their attempt, they tried to make their escape across the mountains to Virginia.

But there was a grim and relentless system about the movement of two posse that set out to comb the timber. Daring to approach no house for food, the fugitives united and took up their stand in a stanch log cabin which had been deserted, and died there, grimly declining to surrender.

Of course the railroad came up Tribulation and crossed through the notch in the mountains at the gap, but the railroad came on terms quite different from those which Mr. Trevor and his ilk had planned.

One day there rode away from the college a gay little procession on its way to the McBriar domain. At its head rode young Milt, and on a pillion behind him, as mountain brides had always ridden to their own houses, sat Dawn McBriar. That was some years ago, and at the big log house there is a toddling, tow-headed young person now whose Christian name is Anse Hovey, though his father insists he is to be ultimately known as "Bad Anse" McBriar.

One autumn day, when the air was as full of sparkle as champagne, and the big sugar tree just outside the hospital window was flaming in an ecstasy of color, Miss Dawn Hovey opened her eyes on the world and found it acceptable.

Jeb McNash was riding through the country that October seeking election to the legislature.

He drew his horse down by the fence.

"Anse," he said in his slow drawl, "it's a pity she's a gal now, han't it?" Anse shook his head. "I reckon," he said, "she's got more chance to be like her mother. Her mother made these hills better for being here, and besides—"

He looked cautiously about and dropped his voice, as if speaking of a forbidden subject, yet into it crept a note of pride. "Besides, young feller, have you got any more notches on the stock of your gun than she has?"

THE END.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alternative. Read this:—

"Gentlemen—Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 14, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (the result of over-exhaustion). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 165 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of having been alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's Alternative. After taking it for a few days I began to feel better. I am now strong and well and can do any kind of work. I feel like a new man. (Abbreviated.)"

(Amateur) ARTHUR A. WEBB, of Kansas City, Mo., writes: "I was afflicted with bronchitis and severe throat and lung affections and had been using various remedies, but no harm or benefit. I began using Eckman's Alternative. After taking it for a few days I began to feel better. I am now strong and well and can do any kind of work. I feel like a new man. (Abbreviated.)"

Money-Making Ways of Using Want Ads

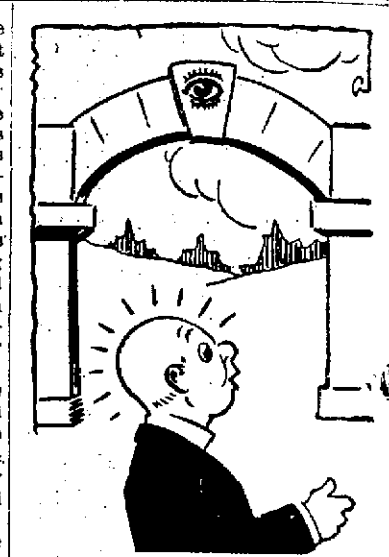

No. 10—Series of Want Ads for Business People

Experienced advertisers will tell you there is no such thing as the best Want Ad on earth. A Want Ad has a certain definite purpose ahead of it. When it does the business, it ceases to be of value.

There are more uses to Want Ads, however, than merely using one and then forgetting that the Want Ad column exists.

If Want Ads bring business sense, they can bring business again. But do not use the same Want Ad. Plan a series, so that you may change your Want Ad every few days.

Here are some ideas as to how a series, or "campaign," of Want Ads may be used:

An Easy Way To Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which, seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, re-constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased blood, the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired—Advertisement.

COURTESY WILL HELP HOLD FARMERS' TRADE

NOYES RAESSLER TELLS COMMERCIAL CLUB THE FARMERS' SIDE OF TRADE PROBLEM.

HEAR LIGHTING EXPERT

Illuminating Engineer Gives Reasons for Advocating Single Standard Type for Boulevard System.

Courtesy and more genuine consideration on the part of the merchant toward the farmer will help materially in holding his trade in his home town, according to Noyes Raessler of Beloit, in an address at the general meeting of the Janesville Commercial club last evening at the Myers Hotel. More than a hundred members of the club enjoyed the banquet and program which followed.

"Farmers are driving the mail order house when they fail to receive fair treatment at the hands of the local business man," Mr. Raessler declared. "Too often is it the case that when the farmer comes to town with his produce, leaving his order with it, he is forced to wait until his eggs are counted or his butter weighed while some other preferred customer gets the attention of the clerk. The farmer doesn't come to town wearing his best clothes, but he is entitled to just as much consideration as the city man, especially when he pays cash for his purchases."

Farmer a Business Equal.

"The trouble with the merchant is that he hasn't given the farmer credit for thinking or advancing with the times. Ten years ago the farmer was pictured in overalls, cowhide boots, wearing chin whiskers and perhaps chewing a straw. He wasn't given credit for knowledge. His appearance may not have changed, but he has awakened to the demands of the times and is as far advanced in his line as most of the city business men. Failing to get courtesy and consideration from the merchants of his home town, the farmer turns to the mail order house which sends him letters in which he is treated as a business equal, appealing to his sense of fair play and justice and, last, but not least, offering him attractive prices. The farmer tries an order and gets prompt service and business-like treatment. He is surprised that he buys his goods in Chicago, especially when he is kept well informed as to prices by attractive literature and personal letters. Now, I want to say right here that the farmer is not a beggar. He is a business man and he has a great deal more pride in his home town than most city people imagine, but usually he is driven to the big city trade because he feels that his treatment here has not been fair."

Farmers Prefer Home Town.

"It is stated that the local merchant can meet mail order prices, without the addition of the freight or express charges. Then why don't they do it? Perhaps they have in some cases, but they need to show the farmer that they can, or at least come within a small amount of the attractive prices offered by the mail order houses. The farmer will always give the local merchant the benefit, as the farmer would rather trade at home. What the small town merchant needs to do is to study conditions, get out and meet the farmers, encourage a discussion of trade problems, treat the farmer as a business equal, and strive for a more thorough understanding which will result in co-operation. That is just what the mail order house has done. It has spent fortunes in analyzing the needs and wants of the farmer, his peculiarities and ways in which his confidence may be gained."

"The business men of Janesville have done a great deal to meet the farmer half way," Mr. Raessler admitted. "You have been liberal with prizes for grain shows, fairs and corn contests. In no county in the state has there been such liberality shown by the merchants in fostering such beneficial enterprises for the farmer. But where you have failed has been in the fact that you did not meet the farmer when he came to town for the show and fairs. You had no representative to address him, and your attitude was not friendly enough."

Mr. Raessler declared that the farmer's biggest problem in the present day is that of marketing his produce. The American farmer gets but 46 cents out of $1.00 of the amount which the consumer pays for the goods the farmer raises. As a result the farmer is anxious to make his 46 cents go as far as possible in the purchase of his goods.

Lighting Expert Talks.

R. F. Johnson, an illuminating engineer, connected with the Western Electric company of Chicago, gave an interesting lecture on the lighting of industrial plants and also on street lighting, a subject of unusual interest in Janesville at present. Mr. Johnson explained the various types of incandescent bulbs now in use, especially commending the nitrogen lamp for highest efficiency. He discussed the problems of reflection, refraction, and the diffusion of light rays.

On the subject of street lighting Mr. Johnson discussed the relative merits of the several types of standard cluster type and the boulevard system. There are two factors to be considered in the boulevard system, according to Mr. Johnson, the architectural side and the lighting efficiency side. On the architectural side the problem considered is the general appearance with relation to the cores and the street. From that standpoint the cluster type is usually favored, but from the view of lighting efficiency, the cluster type is wasteful and expensive and far inferior to the single standard. The criticism of the single standard which usually carries the cluster type is that it is the lack of attractive appearance, although the globe is designed to get the maximum of efficiency from a lighting standpoint. A happy medium is secured, according to Mr. Johnson, by the use of the plain, round globe on the single standard with a small crest of some kind on the top of the globe which will serve to break the monotony of contour and give a more pleasing appearance. Refractors can be successfully used in this style of lamp, Mr. Johnson said.

U. S. EXPERT INVENTS SERUM FOR ANTHRAX

Dr. Adolph Eichhorn.

Dr. Adolph Eichhorn, chief of the division of pathology, bureau of animal industry, of the U. S. department of agriculture, is the discoverer of the anthrax serum for the disease called anthrax. This disease is common to cattle, but rarely infects human beings. Heretofore it has been supposed to be practically incurable, but the serum discovered by Dr. Eichhorn was used on 500 infected cattle with the result that only seventeen died.

George B. King, Vice-President of the club, presided in the absence of President J. A. Craig. Secretary McDowell gave a short talk at the opening of the program, explaining something of the campaign which Janesville, with the aid of Beloit and Madison, is conducting before the Interstate Commerce commission to secure more equitable freight rates. Janesville's share in the expense is $200, a small portion of which has as yet been unsubscribed. Janesville's freight rates at present from Chicago and other eastern points are as high as those of Winona, Minn., or about 40 percent more than paid at Rockford. A hearing will probably be conducted at Madison early in December on the rate question, Mr. McDowell said.

W. H. Dougherty gave a short address in which he commended the remarks of Mr. Johnson on street lighting and declared himself in favor of some such type of lamp as Mr. Johnson suggested. He said he did not believe the merchants cared to sacrifice lighting efficiency for general appearance for the main factor to be considered after all, is the thorough illumination of the streets.

ANURIC!

The Newest Discovery in Chemistry.

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and aches which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric" manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or even write Dr. Pierce for a free sample. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Dr. Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you without fee or charge.

Note:—"Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—or more in extreme cases—"Anuric" (thanks to Doctor Pierce's achievement) is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.—Advertisement.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grand-ma's Recipe. See and Suffer and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

PERSONAL RELICS OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN WILL BE SOLD TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Oct. 27.—The coat he wore when shot, his finger ring, inkstand, watch-key and other intimate personal relics owned and used by Abraham Lincoln, will be sold under the hammer at the Anderson galleries today. Minor sales already have been made.

Among these objects are the Lincoln-Brooker rifle, bought in common by Lincoln and Henry Brooker for $15 and used by them until their fleeing trip until 1830; a lock of Lincoln's hair, and a cane and umbrella handles owned by the Great Emancipator.

These things are a part of the collection of Lincoln relics owned by John E. Burton of Milwaukee, who has been assembling them for fifty years. Among the books and manuscripts to be sold are nearly all the biographies of Lincoln, including several in foreign languages, and a pamphlet entitled "Reasons Against the Renomination of Abraham Lincoln," the only copy ever offered at auction of "The Bloody Juno" which could not last order for a pardon, two leaves from Lincoln's sum book of about 1824, with his autograph, and a series of seven documents signed by Lincoln, which reveal four personal associations "about which nothing has been generally known."

If you want to buy or sell anything use the want ads.
